Potential Uses

Personal

- The perfect solution for people living in apartments, patio homes or condominiums to store items that would take up valuable space in limited living quarters.
- Temporarily store your furniture and other items while waiting to move into your new residence.
- In the off season, a storage unit is the perfect place to store your car, motorcycle, personal watercraft, or snowmobile.

Business

- Contractors can use a storage unit to store equipment, tools, and materials.
- Businesses can use storage units for record retention purposes or to store equipment and materials they don't use frequently.
- Sales professionals will find that a centrally located storage unit is a perfect solution for storing samples, sales materials, and product information.

Frequently Asked Questions

1. Do I have to sign a lengthy contract?

No. You are only required to sign a month-to-month lease agreement that automatically renews each month until you vacate.

2. When can I get in to my storage unit?

You can get into your unit 7 days a week – 24 hours a day.

3. How is my storage unit secured?

Tenants are responsible for providing their own lock.

4. What about insurance?

StorEase does not provide insurance on your possessions. You may need to make your own insurance arrangements.
